CLUB WILL SERVE IN FOOD CAMPAIGN

Because famine threatens 500 million people of war-torn nations, the American people will begin a drive for food on May 12. Henry Wallace, who heads the drive states that "every penny of such contributions will be used to buy food for overseas relief - no deductions will be made for the administrative or operating expenses of this campaign."

The Farm Credit Club's special activities committee rises to the occasion and Julia Connor, its chairman, has appointed a committee to handle the campaign composed of Rose Fleming, chairman, Isabella McGinnis, Tom Pritchard, and George Hinde. The committee in its first meeting on April 27 agreed to urge every FCA'er to "take a friend to dinner" by contributing either the price of a meal or a can or two of food.

WATERS ADDS TO LAURELS

Adding to her many laurels won in public speaking, Hester Waters won third place in the After Dinner Speaker's contest of the Speakers Training Division of the Advertising Sales and Executive Club on April 22. Hester's talk had as its theme an amusing idea on the use of buttons and was characteristically put over by her.

OLSON BEST BOWLER; LEGAL WINS AGAIN

In a final sweepstakes held by the Men's Bowling League on Thursday eve, Apr. 25, George Olson won first prize of $5.50 with a gross throw of 621. Walter Kowalski's pockets jingled with second prize and Bill Holman's with third. With the move from the Midwest to the East on hand, this may have been many FCA bowlers last chance to throw a tenpin ball.

In the Women's League the high scoring Legal Team won first prize for the third consecutive year to collect a cash prize of $30. The bowlers on the champion team, which had accrued a lead of 14 games over second winner, include Mary Dolde, Bernice and Yvonne Meuers, Margaret Forter, and Lydia Ruch. The race for second place was a close one with Purchase Team leading by one game followed by Reports and Audit Teams running neck and neck. However, Purchase lost three games to Legal and Audit lost three to Reports, boosting Reports up to the winning spot.

The women will officially close the season on Thursday, May 2, with a dinner in the Pine Room of the Kansas City Union Station.

"IF YOU ASK ME"

(Excerpts from Hester Waters' winning speech of April 22)

Button, button - who should wear the button? If you ask me, a lot of people should. . . For instance every person who rides the street car or bus should wear a button stating where he is going. Now if a person who had a seat on a bus wore a button saying "I ride to the end of the line," I would not waste my time standing by him but would quickly move over by the side of someone wearing a button saying "I get off at the Union Station." Most passengers just sit there with a dead pan expression right up to the very instant they get off the bus. You won't believe this, but one afternoon I saw a man get off the bus while still reading a newspaper - didn't even look up. I wouldn't have cared if he had been run over because just an instant before that I had moved away from where he had been sitting to stand beside a nervous little lady who kept looking out the window as if she were afraid any minute she might ride past her stop - yet there she sat when I got off. . . And how about the wolves? Seeing a button reading "I am a wolf!" would afford the women an opportunity to keep their distance or crowd around the wearer, whichever way their fancy turned. . . I'm in favor of every married man wearing a button proclaiming that fact. It would really help him in the long run because he could say to the gal who fell for his handsome profile "Well, at least you can't say you didn't know. . . Likewise, a bachelor should wear a button. He would then become the property of the woman who saw him first - or the button. . . However, I am not in favor of women getting all the breaks because, as much as I hate to admit it, old maids are dangerous. I would like to see every old maid forced to wear a button that read "Don't flirt with me unless you mean business" or "Make love to me at your own risk."
